

1 (whereupon, the following proceedings were 2 duly had:)

3 THE CLERK: Amy Lynn Photography Studio,
4 LLC, et al. vs. City of Madison, et al., 17 CV 555.

5 THE COURT: Appearances, please.

6 MR. SCRUGGS: Yes, Your Honor.
7 Jonathan Scruggs on behalf of the plaintiffs. And 8 with me I have Kate Anderson and Michael Dean.

9 MS. LAUTEN: Patricia Lauten, deputy 10 city attorney for the City of Madison. And with me I 11 have Assistant City Attorney Lara Mainella.

12 MR. LeROY: Afternoon, Your Honor.
13 Kevin LeRoy on behalf of the State of Wisconsin
14 representing the Department of Workforce Development.
15 And with me I have Brian Keenan.

16 THE COURT: All right. We're here on 17 oral arguments on a number of motions.

18 A verified complaint was filed back in 19 March seeking declaratory and injunctive relief 20 relating to the City of Madison and State of 21 Wisconsin Public Accommodations Law.

22 That verified complaint was met with a 23 motion to dismiss by both of the -- well, both of the 24 defendants, both sides, the State and the City.

25 And we also have a motion for a

1 temporary injunction by the plaintiff to bar
2 enforcement of the ordinance at issue and the statute 3 at issue, and we've set that for oral argument.

4 I have reviewed all the briefs several 5 times, many of the cases several times, the standards 6 relating to temporary and permanent injunctions, the 7 law on declaratory judgments, and some other 8 procedural issues that I want to address before we 9 get to the substantive arguments.

10 And let me ask the plaintiff -- I
11 promise you I'm going to give you a chance to argue 12 points that you don't think were clear enough in the 13 briefing -- but starting with the procedural issues 14 that are of concern to me, obviously you have a 15 verified complaint which is a little bit different 16 from a regular complaint in that it is sworn, right?
17 Or verified. Does that mean that it converts a 18 motion to dismiss a verified complaint from a motion 19 to dismiss standard to a summary judgment standard 20 because it is an evidentiary document?

21 MR. SCRUGGS: No, Your Honor, I don't 22 believe so.

23 My general understanding is that even 24 though it's verified, a defendant could bring one of 25 two types of challenges, whether that be a factual

1 challenge or what's called a facial challenge.

2 A facial challenge is when the 3 defendants essentially adopt the motion to dismiss 4 standard. They accept all the facts as true and seek 5 to dismiss on that ground. That is my understanding 6 of what the State and the City have done in this 7 case.

8 And then you've got the evidentiary
9 matters with respect to the preliminary injunction.

10 THE COURT: So it's your understanding
11 that any additional evidence beyond the verified 12 complaint that has been put into the record is not to 13 be considered by the Court on the motion to dismiss, 14 only on the motion for the temporary injunction.

15 MR. SCRUGGS: That's correct, Your 16 Honor.

17 THE COURT: Ms. Lauten, will you or 18 Ms. Mainella be arguing?

19 MS. LAUTEN: We actually have it split 20 up. I'm going to do the motion to dismiss and 21 religion. She's going to do everything on speech.

22 THE COURT: Who's going to do procedure?

23 Do you agree with what Mr. Scruggs just 24 said, that I'm not to consider any of the filings, 25 evidentiary filings on ruling on the motion to

1 dismiss, only on whether or not to grant the 2 preliminary injunction?

3 MS. LAUTEN: I do. And if you'll notice
4 in the City's filing, we were very careful not to put 5 in any affidavits in our motion to dismiss and only 6 included various cases and other things. In the 7 motion for temporary injunction we did include 8 affidavits. And that's precisely why we filed as we 9 did.

10 THE COURT: Some of your arguments on 11 the motion to dismiss invoked the history of the City
12 of Madison in enforcing the Public Accommodations Law 13 and demonstrating that in the past there had been no 14 prosecutions similar to those that are of concern to 15 the plaintiffs. Wasn't that in part your argument on 16 standing and justiciability?

17 MS. LAUTEN: For the motion to dismiss, 18 I think we did that through case law and through the 19 actual statute. I think for the injunction motion we 20 had affidavits.

21 THE COURT: All right. So I'm not to 22 consider any of the affidavits on ruling on the legal 23 sufficiency of the verified complaint.

24 MS. LAUTEN: Of the motion -- of our 25 motion to dismiss?

1 THE COURT: Correct.

2 MS. LAUTEN: Correct.

3 THE COURT: All right.

4 And what about you, Mr. LeRoy?

5 MR. LeROY: I have a similar 6 understanding, Your Honor.

7 THE COURT: All right. Except you moved 8 to dismiss based upon the fact that in 30 years, 9 there's never been a prosecution of the type that is 10 concerning to the plaintiffs. I mean, it's kind 11 of -- am I only to consider that in denial of the 12 temporary injunction?

13 MR. LeROY: Two responses, Your Honor.
14 So, first, we do submit that for the temporary 15 injunction; but, second, that just establishes a 16 legal enforcement history, the lack of case.

17 THE COURT: All right. So is that a
18 factual submission that converts this to a summary 19 judgment on the motion to dismiss?

20 MR. LeROY: I don't think so, Your 21 Honor. But in all events we still have our motion to 22 dismiss claim which doesn't rely on the enforcement 23 history.

24 THE COURT: It relies on the case law
25 defining a public accommodation.

1 MR. LeROY: That's correct, Your Honor.

2 THE COURT: All right. Then let me --
3 while I've got you, Mr. LeRoy, let me start with the 4 State's position.

5 The State has basically stated that 6 there's no case or -- not case or controversy -- no 7 justiciable issue because the statute as interpreted 8 by the Court of Appeals and Supreme Court in the 9 State of Wisconsin does not apply to the plaintiffs 10 because they're not public accommodations. That's 11 one of your grounds, correct?

12 MR. LeROY: That's correct, Your Honor.

13 THE COURT: But what you're -- what 14 you've said is that you would agree to a dismissal of 15 the case against the State with an opinion that the 16 statute doesn't apply because of that case law.

17 MR. LeROY: Yes. That's correct, Your 18 Honor.

19 THE COURT: All right. But isn't that 20 not really a dismissal but a declaration that the 21 statute doesn't apply and on that basis a judgment in 22 favor of the plaintiffs that the Public
23 Accommodations Law of the State of Wisconsin does not 24 apply to the facts as alleged in the complaint?

25 MR. LeROY: Two responses, Your Honor.

1 The first is that our standing argument fits in 2 there. They have not alleged a plausible argument 3 that the statute could be enforced against them.

4 The second point is that they need to 5 show that they fall within the statute in order to 6 launch a declaratory judgment against them because 7 they're claiming the statute infringes on their 8 rights.

9 THE COURT: Right.

10 MR. LeROY: Our response is, no, the 11 statute does not infringe on your rights, therefore, 12 you cannot have successful judgment against the 13 statute.

14 THE COURT: All right. But if I'm 15 making that conclusion, if I adopt what you have just 16 said, which they agree with, am I not declaring that 17 the statute doesn't apply to the facts as alleged 18 here as opposed to dismissing them because they don't 19 have -- haven't stated a claim for which relief may 20 be granted?

21 One is a judgment in their favor. The 22 other is the dismissal because they don't even get to 23 the point of a judgment.

24 But what you're telling me is I should 25 declare that the statute doesn't apply to them and

1 then dismiss the case as opposed to saying, yes, 2 you're entitled to judgment from the Court saying the 3 statute doesn't apply to them. It may sound like a 4 distinction without a difference but it really isn't.
5 One's a judgment. The other's a dismissal without 6 any real effect other than that they don't get any 7 kind of a conclusion from the Court.

8 MR. LeROY: Yes, Your Honor. My 9 position is this. The Court has to interpret the 10 statute in either case to give a dismissal or a 11 judgment. The Court has to say, does the statute 12 apply to Lynn or not?

13 However, in saying that the statute does 14 not apply to them, so interpreting the statute to say 15 it does not apply to them, therefore, her conduct is 16 not within the purview of the statute, that would 17 require a judgment in our favor. That would 18 require -- or a dismissal on the standing. The 19 reason why, their claim is that their conduct is 20 protected and the statute infringes on that. If the 21 Court says your conduct may be protected but the 22 statute doesn't infringe, you do not enter judgment 23 in their favor.

24 THE COURT: Have you reached out to the 25 plaintiffs and attempted a stipulation along the

1 grounds that you've apparently agreed in your 2 briefing?

3 In other words, you have taken the 4 position that the statute doesn't apply to the 5 business as it's alleged in the verified complaint, 6 and they seek a declaration that it doesn't apply to 7 them. It sounds like you're in agreement. Have you 8 reached out to have a stipulation along the lines of, 9 well, it can be resolved that way?

10 MR. LeROY: Your Honor, it does seem 11 that we are in agreement. That's the State's 12 position, is that our positions are in alignment. We 13 have not reached out for a stipulation, and the 14 reason why is in their reply they mention that they 15 are seeking an opinion from the Court.

16 THE COURT: But you're saying if I
17 dismiss it because there's no justiciable controversy
18 here, it really isn't a decision from the Court other 19 than that there's nothing here for the Court to 20 decide because they haven't alleged anything that 21 falls within the purview of the statute.

22 MR. LeROY: Yes. I apologize. So with 23 respect to the standing argument, we are not in 24 agreement on that. I apologize.

25 But as to what the statute means, my

1 understanding is we are in agreement with the 2 plaintiffs.

3 THE COURT: All right. Isn't what 4 you're agreeing is a declaration that the statute 5 doesn't apply?

6 MR. LeROY: Your Honor, I don't think
7 it's a -- I don't think it's a declaratory judgment 8 in their favor. And the reason why -- so I think 9 there's a difference between having a declaratory 10 judgment in favor of a party and then interpreting 11 the statute to say that the statute does not apply.
12 In either case the Court has to interpret the 13 statute.

14 THE COURT: Right. And declare what the 15 statute means.

16 MR. LeROY: And declare what the 17 statute -- yes, that's right. It's not a judgment in 18 their favor because they're asking the Court declare 19 the statute invalid as to their conduct. Our primary 20 position is that the statute's not invalid because it 21 doesn't apply to them.

22 THE COURT: All right. So it's a
23 declaratory judgment declaring what the statute says 24 but it isn't a judgment in their favor.

25 MR. LeROY: Yes, Your Honor. I think

1 that's right, Your Honor.

2 THE COURT: And why are you fighting as 3 to whether it's a declaratory judgment or a 4 dismissal? Is there some sort of a remedy that -- 5 attorney's fees or costs or whatever that they're 6 entitled to if I issue a declaration that the statute 7 doesn't apply because it's, as alleged, not a public
8 accommodation?

9 MR. LeROY: Just as clarification, Your 10 Honor. Are you saying why are we raising the 11 standing argument?

12 THE COURT: No. No. No. Why are you 13 resisting a declaratory judgment? Because you're 14 telling me I've got to declare what the law means --

15 MR. LeROY: Uh-huh.

16 THE COURT: -- and I've got to make a
17 decision based upon that declaration. But you say 18 it's a dismissal, which seems to suggest that you win
19 and they lose but you're both in agreement. Nobody's 20 winning and nobody's losing. Actually, they're 21 winning because they want to have a finding from this 22 Court that the statute doesn't apply.

23 MR. LeROY: So, Your Honor, I suppose
24 the difference between would be -- would include 25 attorney's fees, and beyond that, the State just

1 simply is defending the law as it interprets it. I 2 suppose -- perhaps I'm not quite understanding Your 3 Honor's question. I suppose my primary argument is 4 that I suppose attorney's fees would hinge on whether 5 or not a judgment is entered against the State.

6 THE COURT: Are we talking about the 7 statutory costs or are we talking about actual 8 attorney's fees?

9 MR. LeROY: I apologize.

10 (Sotto voce discussion held)

11 MR. LeROY: Thank you, Your Honor.

12 Co-counsel for the other side has just 13 noted that costs are listed in the Uniform 14 Declaratory Judgment Act. So those costs would 15 presumably hinge on which party is the winning party 16 or not the winning party.

17 THE COURT: What if I declare that 18 neither's the winning party because I agree with both 19 of you? Because nobody's arguing to the contrary, 20 right? Nobody's telling me in this courtroom that 21 the statute that is at issue applies to the 22 plaintiffs.

23 MR. LeROY: Presumably in the Court's 24 discretion costs would just lie with both parties in 25 that instance.

1 I'd just like to step back and say our 2 primary position is that the statute does not apply.

3 THE COURT: Right.

4 MR. LeROY: As to costs, et cetera, we 5 would rely on the Court's discretion.

6 THE COURT: And didn't the plaintiffs in 7 their briefing say we're not looking for costs, we 8 just want a declaration?

9 MR. LeROY: They did in their reply
10 brief. That's correct, Your Honor.

11 THE COURT: Getting back to my question.
12 If I -- and this is my problem with the 13 Planned Parenthood appellate decision. I still don't 14 understand how they did what they did. They said
15 there was no case or controversy, no justiciable 16 issue because there was nothing to declare but they 17 declared something that nobody argued. I never got 18 that, why that wasn't a declaratory judgment. They 19 had to declare what the law meant before they made a 20 finding that there was nobody entitled to a 21 declaration.

22 And that's what you're asking me to do, 23 declare what the law means to say that they don't 24 have a right to a declaration. That's what I don't 25 understand here.

1 MR. LeROY: So, again -- I apologize for 2 not being entirely clear. My position is the 3 difference between the Court interpreting the statute 4 and saying it doesn't apply and then interpreting the 5 statute to then declare that it is 6 unconstitutional --

7 THE COURT: No. I'm not talking about 8 unconstitutionality. I'm talking about whether it 9 applies because of the public accommodations, the 10 very narrow issue that you raised which you say is 11 dispositive. I agree with you it is dispositive. If 12 the Public Accommodations Law does not apply, which 13 both sides say it doesn't, for the State of Wisconsin 14 at least, then that's the end of the case as far as 15 the case against the State goes, isn't it?

16 MR. LeROY: So, Your Honor, I think 17 perhaps a way out of this dispute would be to say the 18 State would not oppose a declaratory judgment saying 19 the plaintiffs -- the statute means what the State 20 says it means in the briefs, and, therefore, the 21 plaintiffs' conduct is not, therefore, infringed.
22 And then for the Court to distribute costs according 23 to as plaintiffs' say in their brief.

24 THE COURT: Isn't that what you're 25 looking for? I know you want me to go further, but

1 why in the world would I go into the constitutional 2 issues if the statute doesn't apply?

3 MR. SCRUGGS: Your Honor, two points.
4 That is fine. We're fine. All we're looking for is 5 the practical reality of assurance to Ms. Lawson. As 6 you can understand, Ms. Lawson has the precarious 7 situation of violating the law and subjecting herself 8 to these penalties without having some type of 9 assurance from the Court that the law doesn't apply 10 to her.

11 THE COURT: All I'd be doing is putting 12 my imprimatur on what both parties are saying is the 13 law here.

14 MR. SCRUGGS: That would be fine, Your 15 Honor. If the Court just wants to issue that order 16 signed by the Court, we're fine with the Court 17 declaring that the Public Accommodations Law does not 18 apply to her for the reasons articulated by the State 19 based on the facts of the case. We are happy with 20 that, Your Honor.

21 THE COURT: Any objection to that,
22 Mr. LeRoy?

23 MR. LeROY: No, Your Honor.

24 THE COURT: So ordered.

25 I don't imagine the City has any basis

1 to object to whatever the State and the plaintiff do, 2 do they?

3 MS. LAUTEN: No. The City's argument
4 was just a little bit different. We did plead she 5 can't state a claim for relief. We don't believe --

6 THE COURT: We're going to get to the 7 City.

8 Now that the State's out, I can excuse
9 you folks or you can stay as you see fit.

10 Will you be drafting an order then to 11 that effect, Mr. LeRoy?

12 MR. LeROY: Certainly, Your Honor.

13 THE COURT: All right. Submit it to 14 plaintiffs' counsel and get their approval before 15 submitting it to the Court. And if you have some 16 sort of irretrievable breakdown between the two of 17 you, then we'll come back and argue about the 18 language and the order.

19 MR. LeROY: Thank you, Your Honor.

20 THE COURT: All right. Let's then talk
21 about -- to the City.

22 Honestly, I'll get back to you when I am
23 done with the City.

24 Ms. Lauten, is there a material
25 difference between the way the City defines public

1 place or accommodation in the ordinance versus how 2 the State does it? And if there's not, why isn't the 3 City's action also resolved along the same lines as 4 the State's?

5 MS. LAUTEN: I don't think there is a
6 material difference having looked at what the City 7 argued. And what the City pointed out in their 8 complaint, it's very similar, almost identical to the 9 same facts as pointed out by the State. We do not 10 believe she comes under public accommodations in the 11 City's ordinance.

12 THE COURT: And you don't either,
13 Mr. Scruggs.

14 MR. SCRUGGS: Well, Your Honor, this is 15 a bit more complicated. And I think it's helpful to 16 contrast the State's position with the City's to 17 highlight this.

18 The State has come to court and 19 consistently said the law does not apply, that it 20 cannot constitutionally apply its law to Ms. Lawson.
21 And even admitted if the Court gets to the merits, 22 the Court could enter an injunction.

23 The City, on the other hand --

24 THE COURT: Temporary injunction.

25 MR. SCRUGGS: A temporary injunction.

1 The City, on the other hand, has 2 defended its right to apply the law to Ms. Lawson for 3 65 pages of its briefing.

4 THE COURT: I didn't see -- I saw 40.

5 MR. SCRUGGS: I was combining the 6 temporary injunction and the motion to dismiss 7 because the arguments overlapped there.

8 More important, Your Honor, the City has 9 explicitly reserved the right to enforce its law
10 against Ms. Lawson on page 29, footnote 13 --

11 THE COURT: But not on these facts.

12 MR. SCRUGGS: Well, Your Honor, I read
13 that footnote a bit differently. And just to clarify 14 the facts so we're all clear, Ms. Lawson is a 15 for-profit business, an LLC, that promotes her 16 services to the general public via the Internet and 17 physically in Madison. That she wants to and has 18 promoted her services on commercial websites like 19 The Knot and weddingwire.com.

20 You know, Your Honor, if you look at the 21 past commission interpretations, the commission has 22 interpreted similar scenarios to be a public
23 accommodation.

24 I'd also dispute, Your Honor, that the 25 State law and the City law are different. Their

1 terms are different.

2 THE COURT: Well, I was going to get 3 back to Ms. Lauten on that, because there's some 4 differences that I'd like to explore with her as 5 well.

6 But I'll get back to you.

7 MR. SCRUGGS: We have the issue of the 8 text of the law. We have the issue of just the 9 defense the City has put forward that is a bit 10 inconsistent. There's --

11 THE COURT: It may be depending upon 12 some clarification. As I understood the City's 13 position, it was based on what has been put in the 14 verified complaint and everything we've seen in the 15 affidavits. This is not something that it falls
16 within the purview of the Madison Public
17 Accommodations and Amusement statute ordinance.
18 Correct?

19 MS. LAUTEN: Correct.

20 THE COURT: That's basically it?

21 I think what you see as some 22 inconsistency is they say, well, we don't know what 23 else is going to come down the pike and we're not 24 going to say that she's got free license to do 25 whatever, but what she has told us here doesn't fall

1 within our ordinance.

2 MR. SCRUGGS: Your Honor, I think it's 3 helpful to look at what the City cites. I've got 4 some quotes here from the City's brief. For example, 5 on page 8. "If the Public Accommodations Laws are 6 enjoined from enforcement, even just as to Amy or 7 just to wedding photographers, a whole segment of the 8 public will no longer be protected from 9 discrimination."

10 On page 26 --

11 THE COURT: Right. These are 12 alternative arguments, aren't they? On the one hand 13 if the statute -- or the ordinance, I'm sorry, I will 14 get those confused forever -- if the ordinance does 15 not apply, we don't get to the issue of injunction 16 and what the standards are for injunction because 17 there's nothing to enjoin. I declare as I do with 18 the State that it doesn't apply. It's only if I make 19 the finding that you stated a claim for relief that 20 there is a potential that there's an implication of 21 enforcement of this ordinance against your client 22 that we get into all the other arguments: The 23 constitutional arguments, the arguments about what 24 you just raised about its effects on discrimination, 25 et cetera. But the initial position that I

1 understood -- and this is why I wanted to talk to the 2 City about it, because you raised the issue it's 3 inconsistent, may or may not be, I don't think it is, 4 but if it is, then we're going to get beyond this and 5 get to your points.

6 MR. SCRUGGS: Sure.

7 THE COURT: The initial argument, as I
8 understand what they're saying, is this isn't 9 something based on everything that we've -- that's 10 been filed by the plaintiffs. This is not something 11 that would fall under the purview of the Madison 12 ordinance.

13 MR. SCRUGGS: Yes, Your Honor.

14 THE COURT: Am I correct?

15 MS. LAUTEN: You are correct. And I 16 provided that caveat in the footnote because 17 obviously if she opened a business on State Street, 18 we'd have a different analysis.

19 THE COURT: Right.

20 MS. LAUTEN: I don't want anybody to 21 think that we're going to say for all times --

22 THE COURT: Well, and I can understand
23 Mr. Scruggs' point. Nobody would have interpreted 24 that future facts are foreclosed by whatever we do 25 here because it all is fact-dependent.

1 MS. LAUTEN: Right.

2 THE COURT: But based upon what we have 3 here, you're saying the City's position is there is 4 nothing -- there's no applicability of this ordinance 5 to the plaintiffs' conduct as set forth in the 6 factual materials and the verified complaint.

7 MS. LAUTEN: That is correct. Yes.

8 MR. SCRUGGS: Your Honor --

9 THE COURT: Doesn't that dispose of it?

10 MR. SCRUGGS: Yes, Your Honor, in the 11 sense of if the City's willing to be bound by its, 12 again, the same type of scenario with a signed order 13 from the Court explaining that Ms. Lawson is not a 14 public accommodation for the reasons the City puts 15 forth, we're fine with that as long as the City's 16 bound by it in a Court order.

17 THE COURT: Why wouldn't they be bound
18 by it if I ordered that? Similar to what I'm doing 19 with the State.

20 MR. SCRUGGS: That's all we're asking
21 for, Your Honor. All we're asking for, essentially, 22 is that practical safety for Ms. Lawson. We want 23 assurance for her. I think the key point is we don't 24 want Ms. Lawson to do the things that are in the 25 complaint that we allege that she wants to do:

1 Again, promote her services to general public;
2 physically promote her services in Madison, which we 3 allege; do so on commercial websites, things along 4 this nature. As long as we're both crystal clear 5 about what she wants to do, we welcome that result, 6 Your Honor.

7 THE COURT: Well, the only thing that is 8 crystal clear is, and to the extent that anything is 9 crystal clear, is what you have alleged in your 10 materials. That's the sole basis upon which I could 11 make any kind of an order. Correct?

12 MR. SCRUGGS: Yes, Your Honor. That's 13 the type -- that's what we allege in the complaint.

14 THE COURT: All right. So do we need to 15 go any further, Ms. Lauten? Or do we have an order 16 that the Madison ordinance does not apply to the 17 plaintiffs' conduct as alleged in the verified
18 complaint?

19 MS. LAUTEN: As alleged in the verified
20 complaint.

21 THE COURT: And I can issue an order to 22 that effect?

23 MS. LAUTEN: One moment, Your Honor.

24 (Sotto voce discussion held)

25 MS. LAUTEN: Just so you know the basis,

1 and I think we outlined very clearly and pulled the 2 things out of her complaint, also examined the case 3 law of hearing examiners have found is looking at 4 places. But the second requirement just as 5 importantly is she was not accepting all-comers. She 6 has selectivity that she was alleging in her 7 complaint. So as long as we limit it to what she 8 alleged in her verified complaint --

9 THE COURT: I think that's what I
10 said --

11 MS. LAUTEN: Yeah.

12 THE COURT: -- but to the extent that 13 that needed clarification by saying it again, I'll 14 accept that as a friendly amendment.

15 MS. LAUTEN: Okay.

16 THE COURT: So should I issue a 17 declaration to that effect?

18 MS. LAUTEN: Yes.

19 MR. SCRUGGS: That is great, Your Honor.
20 That's the type of assurance that my client needs to 21 exercise what she believes are her constitutional 22 rights.

23 THE COURT: So ordered then.

24 There's no need to hit the issues of 25 temporary injunction because there's nothing to 1 enjoin because we're issuing the declaration as 2 agreed here today. There's nobody arguing to the 3 contrary, so there's no point in getting to the 4 constitutional issues. There's no point in getting 5 to the temporary injunction, the permanent 6 injunction. We've got declarations going with the 7 State and with the City.

8 What else do we have to do today?
9 That's all dispositive.

10 MR. SCRUGGS: Your Honor, would you like 11 us to draft up --

12 THE COURT: I'll let the City try.
13 Again, the same thing -- unless you want to do more 14 work -- it's going to be a collaborative effort. And 15 there will be no costs either way.

16 MR. SCRUGGS: We're fine with that, Your 17 Honor.

18 MR. LeROY: Thank you, Your Honor.

19 THE COURT: And then that -- I don't 20 know what you would appeal. Those orders would be 21 final for purposes of appeal.

22 All right. That's what we'll do.
23 Anything further here today from the 24 plaintiffs?

25 MR. SCRUGGS: No, Your Honor.

THE COURT: From the City?

MS. LAUTEN: No, Your Honor.

THE COURT: And the State's already gone. Anything further?

MR. LeROY: No, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Thank you. We're adjourned.

MR. SCRUGGS: Thank you, Your Honor.
